MISSION STATEMENTS FOR KENTUCKY'S COMMUNITY COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES
(Adopted January, 1977; Revised January, 1983)

Community Colleges

The University of Kentucky Community College System, consisting of twelve community colleges and a technical institute, shall provide traditional community college education to Kentucky students. The programming of the individual segments of the community college system should be developed in accordance with the availability of resources and with particular emphasis on the needs of the immediate community. It is expected that programming will vary from institution to institution as each community college responds to its situation. Thus, some community colleges will be comprehensive in nature while others will be more limited in scope.

In general, the community colleges shall offer a mix of programs designed to serve the general education, occupational, and continuing education needs of the immediate community with certain restrictions. Neither the community colleges nor community college components within four-year universities should offer certificate programs of less than the associate degree level unless such programs are an integral part of associate and baccalaureate programs. Associate degree programs which are high cost and designed to meet specific but limited manpower needs of the Commonwealth should be designed to rotate among the community colleges in the system as the need for and interest in the program increases/declines in a particular community. Unique technical programs which are underenrolled should be made available to interested students regardless of the institution in which they are enrolled while certain highly technical discipline-specific continuing education offerings might be inappropriate undertakings for community colleges.

Community colleges shall provide student services such as career counseling, academic advising, and developmental studies in order to insure that students have an opportunity to achieve their needs, abilities, and aspirations.

Where community colleges are located proximate to other higher education and/or postsecondary institutions, they should foster close working relationships and develop articulation agreements with those institutions. Community colleges are encouraged to develop, where practical, joint programs with vocational schools which promote the sharing of existing facilities and capabilities while upgrading the level of instruction.

Kentucky State University

Kentucky State University shall serve as a residential institution with a range of traditional collegiate programs appropriate to its role as the unique, small, liberal studies institution with the lowest student-faculty ratio in the state system. The University shall focus on the needs of its student body, which includes but is not limited to full-time and part-time residential students, commuting students from its primary service area, and state governmental employees; and on the expanding instruction, applied research and service needs of state government. Associate and baccalaureate degree programs should be oriented toward liberal studies, selected career opportunities related to state governmental services and related human and public services.

At the master's degree level, the University should emphasize public administration curricula to meet the needs of state government. These programs should be carefully articulated with related doctoral programs offered by the doctoral-granting institutions in the system. Other graduate offerings should be provided through a multi-institutional graduate education center administered by Kentucky State University.

Kentucky State University, as one of two land-grant institutions in the system, should carry out its responsibilities under federal law and participate fully in appropriate U. S. Department of Agriculture programs, placing emphasis on activities that are in accord with the mission of the institutions.

Kentucky State University should strive to become a major repository for the collection of books, records, and artifacts relative to its history in educating Black citizens of the Commonwealth and should make such materials available for casual and scholarly study.

Eastern Kentucky University

Eastern Kentucky University shall serve as a residential, regional university offering a broad range of traditional programs to the people of central, eastern, and southeastern Kentucky. Recognizing the needs of its region, the University should provide programs at the associate and baccalaureate degree levels, especially programs of a technological nature.

Subject to demonstrated need, selected master's degree programs should be offered, as well as the specialist programs in education. A retrenchment or elimination of duplicative or nonproductive programs is desirable, while development of new programs compatible with this mission is appropriate.

The University should continue to meet the needs in teacher education in its primary service region and should provide applied research, service, and continuing education programs directly related to the needs of its primary service region.

Because of the University's proximity to other higher education and postsecondary institutions, it should foster close working relationships and develop articulation agreements with those institutions. The University should develop cooperative applied research and teaching programs utilizing resources such as Lilly's Wood and Pilot Knob Sanctuary, and Maywoods.

Morehead State University

Morehead State University shall serve as a residential, regional university providing a broad range of educational programs to the people of northern and eastern Kentucky. Recognizing the needs of its region, the University should offer programs at the associate and baccalaureate degree levels which emphasize the traditional collegiate and liberal studies. Carefully selected two-year technical programs should be offered as well.

Subject to demonstrated need, selected master's degree programs as well as the specialist programs in education should be offered. A retrenchment or elimination of duplicative or nonproductive programs is desirable, while development of new programs compatible with this mission is appropriate.

The University should continue to meet the needs of teacher education in its primary service region and should continue to develop programs to enhance the economic growth in Appalachia. The University should provide applied research, service, and continuing education programs directly related to the needs of the primary service region.

Because of the University's proximity to other higher education and postsecondary institutions, it should foster close working relationships and develop articulation agreements with those institutions.

Murray State University

Murray State University shall serve as a residential, regional university offering a broad range of educational programs to the people of western Kentucky. Recognizing the needs of its region, the University should continue to offer programs at the associate and baccalaureate degree levels which emphasize the traditional collegiate and liberal studies.

Subject to demonstrated need, selected master's degree programs should be offered as well as specialist programs in education. A retrenchment or elimination of duplicative or nonproductive associate degree programs is desirable, while development of new programs compatible with this mission is appropriate.

The University should continue to meet the needs in teacher education in its primary service region and should provide applied research, service, and continuing education programs directly related to the needs of its primary service region.

Because of the University's proximity to other higher education and postsecondary institutions, it should foster close working relationships and develop articulation agreements with those institutions. The University should develop cooperative applied research and teaching programs utilizing the unique opportunities available at Murphy's Pond and the Kentucky Lake Biological Station.

Northern Kentucky University

Northern Kentucky University shall serve students living in its immediate environs and offer a broad range of educational programs which emphasize the traditional collegiate and liberal studies. Recognizing the needs of its region, the University shall provide programs primarily at the associate and baccalaureate degree levels.

Subject to careful justification, selected master's degree programs, as approved by the Council on Higher Education, may be offered. The provision of broader graduate education services shall be provided by a graduate education center at Northern Kentucky University in which the participation of one or more advanced graduate education universities is arranged through Northern.

The University should continue to offer health and selected technical programs because it serves as a community college for the area.

Because of its close proximity to other higher education and postsecondary institutions, Northern should foster close working relationships and develop articulation agreements with those institutions. The University should provide applied research, service, and continuing education programs directly related to the needs of its primary service region.

The development of a community studies center encouraging applied research and public service activities would provide a unique opportunity for cooperating with other institutions and for service in the northern Kentucky area.

Western Kentucky University

Western Kentucky University shall serve as a residential, regional university offering a broad range of traditional programs to the people of south central and portions of western Kentucky. Recognizing the needs of its region, the University should provide programs at the associate and baccalaureate degree levels, especially programs of a technological nature.

Subject to demonstrated need, selected master's degree programs should be offered as well as the specialist programs in education. A retrenchment or elimination of duplicative or nonproductive programs is desirable, while development of new programs compatible with the mission is appropriate.

The University should continue to meet the needs in teacher education in its primary service region and should provide applied research, service, and continuing education directly related to the needs of its primary service region.

Because of the limited community college opportunities in the service region, the University should develop its Bowling Green Community College component, emphasizing technical programs. The University should develop close working relationships and develop articulation agreements with other institutions.

University of Louisville

The University of Louisville shall be a major university located in the largest urban area and shall meet the educational, research, and service needs of its metropolitan area with a broad range of programs at the baccalaureate and master's levels. The University of Louisville shall continue to offer those doctoral degree and postdoctoral programs related to the health sciences. The University of Louisville will continue to share with the University of Kentucky a statewide mission in medicine, dentistry, law, and urban affairs. However, the financial resources of the Commonwealth are limited. Kentucky cannot afford to develop two comprehensive programs at the doctoral level, currently and in the future. Therefore, at the doctoral level, the University of Louisville may offer a limited number of carefully selected programs which are not unnecessarily duplicative and which are relevant to the needs of its metropolitan service area. Doctoral programs not consistent with this statement shall be phased out as soon as practical, with due regard to the interests of students already enrolled and to faculty and staff employed therein. In the health sciences, close coordination with the University of Kentucky must be maintained.

While it may be necessary for other institutions to offer certain programs therein, the specific responsibility to satisfy the broad range of undergraduate, master's, and special needs of the residents of the metropolitan service area of Louisville and Jefferson County rests with the University of Louisville.

Careful articulation of academic programs at Jefferson Community College and the University of Louisville should be developed to enhance educational opportunities in the Louisville and Jefferson County metropolitan service area.

University of Kentucky

The University of Kentucky shall be the Commonwealth's only statewide institution. It shall serve as the principal graduate-degree-granting university in the system and as the principal institution for statewide instruction, research, and service programs in all fields without geographical limitation.

By virtue of these responsibilities, the University shall serve as a residential institution and maintain a wide range of academic programs at the baccalaureate, master's, and doctoral degree levels, with professional programs as approved by the Council on Higher Education. Because of its designation as the principal research, service, and graduate institution, the University shall emphasize the development of its graduate, professional, research, and service programs. It is essential to the success of the entire system that the University shall exert maximum effort for cooperative doctoral programs with other universities in the Commonwealth and cooperate in applied research and service with other institutions. In the health sciences, close coordination with the University of Louisville must be maintained. This emphasis may require retrenchment of some programs and limitations on undergraduate enrollment at the Lexington campus.

SUMMARY OF KENTUCKY STATUTES CONCERNING THE COUNCIL ON HIGHER EDUCATION (KRS 164.010, 164.020, 164.947)

The Kentucky Council on Higher Education is established by statute as the coordinating agency for Kentucky's statewide system of higher education. Its primary function is to develop and coordinate an integrated system of diverse institutions that complement one another.

The Council is composed of 18 members, 17 of whom are lay citizen members appointed by the governor. They include one from each of Kentucky's seven congressional districts; eight from the state at large, including a student appointed from among nominees made by the public university student government organizations; and two from nominees made by the president pro tem of the Kentucky Senate and the speaker of the state House of Representatives. The state superintendent of public instruction, who is a nonvoting member, is on the Council by virtue of the office. Among the appointed members, the Council must include at least one undergraduate degree recipient from each of Kentucky's eight public universities.

Kentucky statutes give the following responsibilities, duties, and powers to the Council:

- Engage in analysis and research to determine the overall needs of Kentucky higher education;
- Develop comprehensive plans for public higher education;
- Review the institutions' biennial state funding requests and make recommendations to the governor, and in cooperation with the university presidents, devise, establish, and periodically review and revise formulas for use in making funding recommendations;
- Determine the tuition levels for the public universities and community colleges and approve minimum qualifications for admission to them;
- Review all capital construction requests of the institutions that are in excess of $200,000 in cost and make recommendations to the executive branch of state government;
- Require reports from the institutions and publish an annual report of the institutions' academic and financial affairs;
- Define and approve the offering of all associate, baccalaureate, graduate, and professional degree or certificate programs by the public institutions;
- Recommend when new state-supported community colleges or four-year colleges are needed;

- Constitute the representative agency in Kentucky for all higher education matters of a statewide nature not otherwise delegated to (an) institution(s);
- Approve the teacher-education programs in the public universities;
- Maintain an office of and coordinate the state's professional education preparation program (for increasing enrollment in medical or dental school of students from counties with shortages of doctors or dentists); and
- Develop standards and procedures and be responsible for licensing nonpublic colleges in Kentucky.
